Word, Eucharist, Life

Third Sunday of Easter

Acts 2

Psalms 16

1 Peter 1

Luke 24

They were conversing about all the things that had occurred.

Perhaps the two disciples fleeing Jerusalem were seeking answers.

Was it wonderment or confusion or just plain grieving?

Then the One who could resolve their questions began to walk with them.

Yet the truth of their downcast situation was hidden from their eyes perhaps by overwhelming sadness and their dashed hopes even though wonders of Jesus' rising had been reported to them.

The Word himself began to unravel the threads of understanding for the disciples.

Yet their hospitality opened the door to the understanding that Jesus comes into our midst and reveals himself in the breaking of bread.

Perhaps we come to the Eucharist with confusion and bewilderment.

The Word is proclaimed in scripture and sacrament to open our eyes when we welcome the risen One with hospitality of faith.

The eyes of faith open to accept him on his terms rather than our own so that we can give witness to the Resurrection.

Our love for others welcomes the risen Christ in the persons we meet along the journey of life in this world. Then our hearts burn with joy.

Thank You for Being Here!
